Grade 3 · Riverside Elementary · Riverside School District · Prepared by J. Rivera · October 2026

SUMMARY

Between Aug 31 and Oct 23, 2026, Leo had three goals: two active and one waiting for its target. The active goals are 41% of the way to target on average.

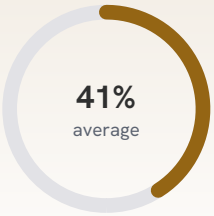

The reading goal is on track, 64% of the way to target, with main idea accuracy 16 points ahead of its expected path. Its next observation is planned for Oct 27, 2026. The math goal is behind, 18% of the way to target, with two-digit addition with regrouping accuracy 3 points behind its expected path. Its next observation is planned for Oct 28, 2026.

24 observations were recorded, about 3.1 a week, and no planned observation is overdue.

AT A GLANCE

Mostly on track

Leo is on track on 1 of 2 active goals and behind on 1.

- 16 points ahead of where the expected path puts main idea accuracy today.
- Every planned observation was done, 21 of 23 on their day.
- Two reading milestones met early: the latest, 55%, on Oct 6, 6 weeks before it was due.
- Math is 3 points behind its path, at 49%, with a prompt in every one of the last 8 observations.

How this report is worked out

Progress compares a measure's latest observation with its baseline and its target: 100% is the target met. A goal's figure is the average of its measures, and a student's the average of their active goals.

The expected path is a straight line from the baseline on the goal's first day to the target on its last. A goal is On track when its latest value is at or ahead of it, and Behind when it falls short.

Milestones step from the baseline to the target, each with its own number, on the report card days: one on each for a goal of one skill, one for each skill about midyear for a goal of several.

Every figure comes from the observations recorded in Blume, worked out the same way for every student, and every sentence is filled in from those figures, so the report says what the data says.

Goals and observations recorded in Blume for Leo Martinez as of October 23, 2026. This report contains student information: store and share it according to your district's student privacy (FERPA) policies.
